

Angela Coetzee

Holds a Bachelors in Applied Value & Policy studies from the University of Stellenbosch and a Diploma in Computer Science. Her other interests are in the phenomena of entrepreneurship and understanding global contexts to address local challenges. She is currently pursuing a Masters at the University of Cape Town, exploring migration chains and the entrepreneurial activity that migrants generate in their host countries, focusing on South Africa in particular.

Angela is passionate about young people and currently work with the Allan Gray Orbis Foundation. They invest in growing entrepreneurs to inculcate an entrepreneurial spirit in young individuals the Foundation believes to be the future change agents of South Africa.

Angela has come to understand that social contexts guide our behaviour. She has traveled extensively and has realised that human beings share common needs and desires making us more interconnected than we would like to admit. Angela enjoys reading, but only if the content teaches her something new. In her free time she feeds her creativity by working with her hands, adventuring in the outdoors, enjoying the beautiful creation of God and spending time with her family
